

HISTORY OF WORLD WAR 1

STUDENT FIELD STUDY BOOKLET Maryborough Military and Colonial Museum

An education perspective for Queensland Schools

STUDENT / TEACHER RESOURCE KIT

The Maryborough Military and Colonial Museum, in consultation with a Mastersqualified secondary school history teacher, has developed a teaching resource aligned to the study of World War 1 in Year 9.

This FREE resource pack consists of:

- 40-page Student Field Booklet. Interactive PDF with artefacts from the museum been mapped to the curriculum and a series of questions and reflections posed for students to consider.
- 40-page Teacher Companion (as above with answers).
- Complete Unit plan for a 10-week course of in-depth study related to World War 1.
- Assessment Instrument and Marking Rubric.

This resource has been endorsed by Dr Brendan Nelson (Former Director of the Australian War Memorial) who says:

“A local school history teacher has produced this superb History Student’s Field Study Booklet to support Senior Teachers bringing students to the museum and region. This greatly enhances educational value to any excursion. I urge parents and educators to consider Maryborough as a place to be visited by students studying Australia’s military history, especially that of the First and Second World Wars.”

Steve Case, Retired Assistant Regional Director of Education, North Coast Region has also formally endorsed this resource:

“This booklet ensures a quality opportunity for student learning as well as intellectual engagement with past events. I believe it is a significant production which will profoundly enhance opportunities to explore confronting realities. This resource provides an accurate alignment with current syllabus documents and will form a valuable aid to a teacher’s resource collection.”
